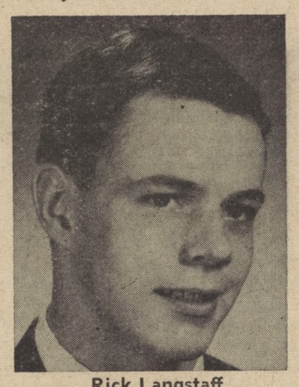
Hanson, Deci To Head Paper; Langstaff Wins Senate Position

The 1963-64 Student Senate will be headed by Rick Langstaff, announced John Sanders, chairman of the Elections Committee. Langstaff defeated Hank Drewal for the presidency of the Senate in the run-off election before spring recess.

In the class elections on Wednesday, the sophomores elected Peter Hausmann, president and Denny Driscoll vice president for the coming year. Rick Stevenson won the presidency and David Walrath won the vice presidency in the freshman race.

Election of the senior class president and the primary elections for the sophomore and the junior class representatives-at-large to the Senate will be held Tuesday.



Rick Langstaff

Langstaff is the representative of the Independents on the Senate this year and is also a member of the Student Curriculum Committee. He played varsity baseball in his sophomore year.

Hausmann is a member of the Fraternity Evaluation Committee of the Senate, the treasurer of Theta Delta Chi, and this week was tapped for Was Los. Driscoll is director of student guides, a member of the Student Admissions Committee, and an editorial assistant on the Spectator.

Stevenson ran cross-country in the fall and presently plays freshman baseball. In high school he was president of the senior class, business manager of the yearbook, and captain of the cross-country team. Walrath played freshman football last fall. He was vice president of the student government in his high school and won the Gold Award as the student who had done the most for his school.

Juniors will vote for their senior class president next Tuesday, from 10:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., in Associate Dean Wertimer's office. Ham Brown and Mark Evans are the candidates. The winner will call a meeting of the class that Lee Hanson has been appointed the new editor-in-chief of the Spectator, announced Herb Kestenbaum, the present editor. Hanson and his staff will begin publishing the paper next week.

Other appointments were Ed Deci, managing editor; Ty Brown and Rick Pfau, associate editors; Steve Bauer, Jerry Engelman, Bruce Lambert, and Bruce Rockwell, assistant editors; Denny Driscoll, editorial assistant; and Dave Devereaux, circulation manager.

Kestenbaum announced these appointments Tuesday night at a meeting of the Spectator's editorial board.

Professor Announces Eight Students To Study Under French Program

Prof. Marcel Moraud, chairman of the department of Romance Languages, has announced the names of the eight Hamilton students who will take part in the Junior Year in France Program next year. The program will be under the direction of James B. Davis, assistant professor of French.

The eight chosen on the basis of academic excellence and competence in French are, Marty Barringer, Roger Daley, Harry Kopp, Lorin Nathan, Dave Robinson, John Simon, Geoff Stamm, and Dick Swoboda.

Barringer, Daley and Robinson are all of Gryphon. For the past two years, Barringer has been active in the marching band and in WHCL. He also wrote for the Spectator last year. Daley is a member of the French Club and has been a member of the International Relations Club for the past two years. Robinson is a member of the Choir and the band.

ELS also has three participants in next year's program, Nathan, Stamm and Swoboda. Last year, Nathan was a competitor in the McKinney Prize Speaking Contest. He also won the Woodfork Scholarship and one of the Fayerweather Scholarships. This year, he is a member of the debate club and runs track. Stamm is on the executive board of the French Club and is a member of the International Relations Club. Last year, he was a member of the Choir. Swoboda is on the executive board of the Choir and also sings in the Buffers.

Kopp, a member of Delta Phi, is the corresponding secretary of his house. Simon, an Independent, writes the "Here and There" column in the Spectator. He is currently a member of the golf team and will soon appear in Sean Fitzpatrick's one act play, A Toast to Stanley.

The 50 members of the Hamilton Junior Year in France program will leave New York Sept. 5 on the SS France. The members of the group will take a number of placement exams while on board ship and, after arriving at Biarritz, will undergo a six week orientation session.

Upon the completion of the preliminary session in Biarritz, the group will take a five day journey to Spain and then return to Paris shortly before Nov. 4, when classes will begin.

Hill Senior Wins Speaking Contest

Doug Wheeler won first prize, and Jim Gifford second prize, in the 91st McKinney Prize Debate, held last night in the Root Art Center.

Wheeler, who is in ELS, is a member of the Student Senate Lecture and Rushing Committees and of the Student Curriculum Committee. Last year he was president of the IRC.

Gifford, a Psi U, is presently vice president of the Debate Club. He is a member of the Young Republicans, and has been a member of the IRC. Gifford recently received a Woodrow Wilson fellowship.

Choir To Present Several Concerts In Massachusetts

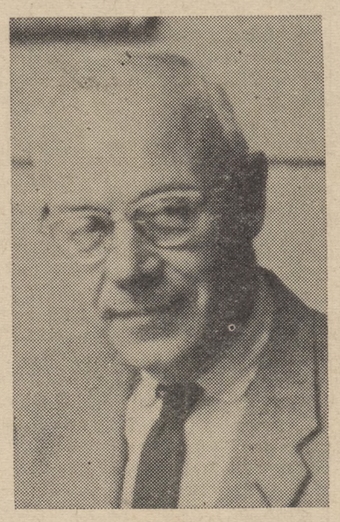
The Hamilton College Choir, under the direction of John Baldwin, Jr., will present several concerts in Denver, Massachusetts, over the weekend of Apr. 19-21.

The members of the choir will perform first at the Congregational Church on Friday night at 8 p.m. Sunday morning they will sing in two services at the same church. At 4 p.m. that afternoon, they will give a joint concert at Wellesley with the Wellesley College Choir, directed by Mr. William Herman.

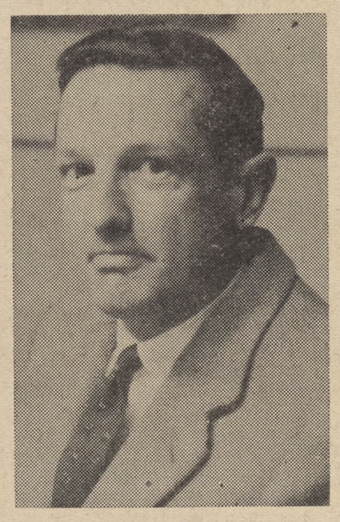
Saturday afternoon, the Choir will rehearse with Wellesley in preparation for the concert on Sunday. The Wellesley Choir will give a party for the Hamilton Choir that evening.

In the joint concert on Sunday afternoon, Baldwin will direct both choirs in a rendition of Requiem, by Heinrich Schutz, and Herman will direct the group for Requiem, by Gabriel Faure. In the first number Dick Swoboda, Marc Cox, and Doug Sheldon will appear as soloists. In the second selection, Sheldon will sing the solo part. The Hamilton Choir will also sing Ascendit Deus, by Jacob Handel.

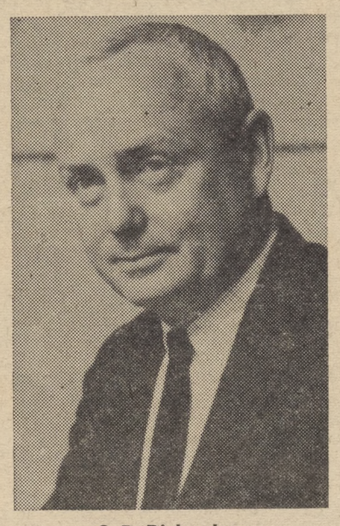
Hill Professors To Go Abroad



J. F. Hunt



E. B. Lee



C. B. Richardson

Three professors will be absent on leave next year to research and teach in foreign countries. Dr. James F. Hunt and Dr. Edwin B. Lee Jr. will be in Tokyo, Japan, and Dr. Channing B. Richardson will be in Niarobi, Kenya, in Africa.

Prof. James F. Hunt, of the departments of public speaking and education, will teach next year at the Aoyamagakuyn University in Tokyo, Japan, as an exchange professor.

Hunt will leave in late August to assume his position for the school year, beginning Sept. 16, 1963. Dr. John Skillman of the Aoyamagakuyn faculty will replace Hunt on the Hill.

The educational exchange, instituted shortly after World War II, sent Hunt to Australia and New Zealand on a similar program in 1953.

In addition to teaching, Hunt intends to observe the schools instituted during the post World War II occupation by the Americans and to study in particular the modifications made by the Japanese after fifteen years of experimentation.

Travel throughout Japan will be an important part of his plans, Hunt said. He mentioned his wish to see the extensive preparations now being made for the 1964 Olympics, to be held in Japan.

Dr. Edwin B. Lee Jr., assistant professor of history, will be absent on leave during the 1963-4 academic year to work under a Fulbright Fellowship for research.

Lee will live in Japan and work on his project at Tokyo University. The school has Japan's main depository library for historical source material.

The subject of Lee's investigation will be the origin, development, and failure of the attempt to combine the Japanese imperial court and military dictatorship during the 1860's. Lee became interested in the study while doing research on an earlier project. He plans to publish a report.

Dr. Channing B. Richardson, Henry P. Bristol Professor of International Affairs, will spend next year lecturing on international affairs at the Kenya Institute of Administration in Nairobi, Kenya.

Richardson will begin his trip when he travels to London, on June 20, to attend a conference at Britain's Colonial Office. Other delegates to the conference will be representatives of all the institutes of administration of the newly independent and ex-British colonies in Africa.

Richardson will be under contract to the University of Syracuse, which is providing such men for the U.S. Agency of International Development. Richardson was recently a member of the faculty of the Salzburg, Austria, Seminar in American Studies. He delivered 11 lectures on American diplomacy in the Middle East and Africa.

Kistiakowski To Speak On World Disarmament

Dr. George B. Kistiakowsky, one of the nation's foremost atomic scientists, will speak tonight in the Chapel at 8 p.m., Prof. Landon G. Rockwell announced this week. His topic will be Some Technological Aspects of Arms Control.

The talk will be the first in a series of three lectures on the general subject, Problems of Arms Control. Prof. Thomas C. Schelling and Dr. Linus C. Pauling will speak on the Hill later in the semester.

Kistiakowsky has served since 1957 on the President's Science Advisory Committee. He is also currently a member of the Advisory Board of the U. S. Army Control and Disarmament Agency.

Born in the Ukraine and educated in the Soviet Union and in Germany, Kistiakowsky emigrated to the United States and joined the faculty of Princeton University in 1928. Since 1938 he has been a professor of chemistry at Harvard, in addition to serving in many posts with the government.

During World War II, Kistiakowsky worked with the National Defense Research Committee. He was named to the National Academy of Sciences' committee on atomic energy in 1941, and from 1944 to 1945 he was chief of the explosives division of the Los Alamos Laboratory. During this time he was instrumental in the development of the atom bomb.

Kistiakowsky worked on the formulation of the hydrogen bomb in the early 1950's, and served as special assistant to the President for Science and Technology from 1959 until 1961.

The author or co-author of some 150 articles and one book, Kistakowsky's research work has largely been in the fields of kinetics of gas phase reactions, structure of polyatomic molecules, thermo-chemistry of organic compounds, enzyme reactions, and shock and detonation waves.

Kistiakowsky is an Honorary Fellow of the Chemical Society (London) and a foreign member of the Royal Society (London). He holds honorary degrees from Harvard and Oxford Universities, the Carnegie Institute, and the Universities of Pennsylvania and Rochester.

Chem Professor To Head Project At Marcy State

Dr. Frederick W. Grant, Jr., assistant professor of chemistry, will be absent on leave for the 1963-4 academic year to direct a research project in bio-chemistry at Marcy State Hospital. Funds from New York State and the National Institute of Mental Health will finance the study.

Grant said he plans to determine any differences in the metabolism of mental patients using tranquilizing drugs. He will compare results in 20 to 30 patients at Marcy State with a control group of normal persons.

No bio-chemical differences have yet been found in the mentally disturbed, but Grant said the theory is "very promising." A possible result of the research, Grant added, could be a bio-chemical classification of mental patients rather than the traditional groupings, like psychotics and schizophrenics.

Grant has been consulting Marcy throughout the year. His research will be the first bio-chemical study at the hospital and will be conducted in a new building. A chromatographic process will measure the metabolism of the subjects using the tranquilizers.

Grant also will make studies at the department of bio-chemistry of Syracuse University.

Nigerian Student Succumbs in Utica After Operation

Morele Obele, '64, died Wednesday, Apr. 3, in Faxton Hospital, of complications following an intestinal operation of non-emergency nature.

Funeral services were held yesterday at 4:15 p.m. in the Chapel by Dean Colin Miller. Obele was buried in the College Cemetery.

Obele, 23, is survived by his mother in Nigeria and brother in London.

Obele was a member of the Yoruba tribe in Nigeria and received his education at the Government College at Ughelli, Nigeria.

He came to Hamilton in 1961 and played soccer part of his freshman year. He was a member of ELS. He spent last summer visiting Washington and touring the West. He was particularly interested in geography and conservation and planned to enter the government service or go into private business on his return to Nigeria.

Mr. Channing B. Richardson, his faculty advisor and friend, said of him, "He was the perfect example of what a foreign student should be. The College, student body, and Faculty have lost a valuable and highly regarded friend."

QUOTATION OF THE WEEK

Time has no divisions to mark its passage, there is never a thunder-storm or blare of trumpets to announce the beginning of a new month or year. Even when a new century begins it is only we mortals who ring bells and fire off pistols.

Thomas Mann
The Magic Mountain

Last-minute Flurry--

The Judiciary Committee and the Student Senate have attempted to make a wise and long-needed change in the organization of the Judiciary Committee, but in their haste they have overlooked two points that totally negate their intentions.

First, and most basically, the amendment if passed takes out of the Student Senate Constitution all mention of a Judiciary Committee. In the discussion of the change at the last Senate meeting, it was generally agreed that a link between the Judiciary Committee and the Senate must be maintained. The Senators adeptly concluded that the chairman of the Judiciary Committee should be a non-voting member of the Senate, but they failed to realize that constitutionally the Judiciary Committee will no longer exist if the amendment is passed by the student body.

Second, neither the amendment nor the change itself makes any provision for the transition from old to new. The Senators, it seems, naively thought either that the transition would be handled by some vague committee or that it would simply take place. Both are impossible. Both have left unanswered the question of who will choose the new chairman for the year of transition. Both have failed to answer the question of what will happen to the Senate and class officers who have already been elected this year to serve, at least in part, on the Judiciary Committee.

The time has passed this year for any change in the composition of the Judiciary Committee. We heartily support the spirit of the change, but we condemn the short-sightedness and last-minute flurry of this year's Senate and its attempts to amend inadequately its own Constitution.

We therefore demand that either of two courses of action be taken. The first allows the Senate to correct its mistake. The second, and admittedly more drastic one, places the burden on the student body to reprove the Senate.

(1) The Senate must not present the amendment to the student body for ratification on Tuesday. It must revise the amendment so that the Judiciary Committee is under the Student Senate Constitution. It must provide constitutionally for an orderly year of transition consistent with the spirit of the reorganization that has already been worked out. It must then present the full amendment to the student body for ratification.

(2) If the amendment is presented for ratification on Tuesday, the student body must defeat it and thus force its return to the Senate for proper consideration.

One of the two courses is necessary if the Judiciary Committee is to be a legal, viable, and respected court for social violations.

--Letters to the Editor--

Senate

To the Editor:

The Student Senate has finally decided to change the structure of the Judiciary Committee, but the amendments to this effect will have some undesirable repercussions if accepted by the student body.

For one, as the change is now presented, the student body will be able to destroy the old system but unable to construct the new. Amendments to the Student Senate Regulations on Social Conduct are not ratified by the student body, and it is an amendment to these Regulations which provides for the new Judiciary Committee. The amendment to the Student Senate Constitution is to be passed by the students but merely removes the provisions for the selection of the old Committee.

Another, longer range effect of the amendments if ratified would be to allow the Senate to change the make-up of the Judiciary Committee at its own discretion. It would be possible for the Senate to compose the Committee of one freshman selected by high card draw or of one hundred seniors elected by the swimming team. These procedures of selection are highly improbable and most likely impractical, but the fact remains that the Senate alone would be able to designate those who could censure an individual or a group for social violations.

The best method of avoiding the undesirable elements of this attempt at a much-needed change would be to amend instead of remove the stipulations as to the selection and size of the Judiciary Committee found in Article 4, Section 7, Subscript a of the Constitution. The provisions for the composition of the other Senate committees are found in the Constitution and there is no logical reason for the Judiciary Committee to be unique in this respect.

It would be best if the Senate were to make these alterations before submitting the Constitutional amendment to the student body. If this cannot or will not be done, it is my opinion that the amendement should be defeated so that the Senate would have to remove the undersirable effects in order to obtain student ratification.

Douglas Frechtling, '65

Total Opportunity

To the Editor:

If it is true, as the recent Spectator editorial claims, that criticism of Total Opportunity has become "sharper" and the questions about it "more penetrating," this fact certainly is not reflected in the substance of the editorial's half-hearted defense of the system. By now we have discussed Total Opportunity far beyond the point of boredom. Those of us who were not apathetic at the beginning have been driven to apathy by the circular reasoning employed by its advocates. The popular defense runs something like this:

1. Every student at this college in the fields should have an opportunity for a social life. (This is no doubt true.)
2. Present facilities being what they are, fraternities provide the only means of obtaining something which approaches a normal social life. (True.)
3. With the existing facilities, and with fraternities possessing these facilities, Total Opportunity offers the most effective means of giving the largest possible share of the student body a chance to participate in social life at Hamilton. (Debatable, but let's grant it.)
4. Therefore, even though Total Opportunity involves many unfortunate problems and has failed on several counts, we must muddle along with what we have and accept the burden of the system until some dim future time when an alternative system shows itself. (This is not true.)

This whole little round of reasoning obscures the fact that to say that Total Opportunity cannot be blamed for Hamilton's social problems is not to say that it has solved them. It has in fact merely succeeded in providing a sweet sounding justification for the manner in which the College has met the problems of increased enrollment and changing attitudes.

Social facilities at Hamilton are inadequate. The Spectator's boring attitude that "If the students wish to abolish total opportunity . . . they must first provide a superior alternative to the present system" is ridiculous and defeatist. No amount of speculating on the part of the student body is going to change the basic fact that Hamilton's social facilities consist of eleven fraternity houses, and that there is just so much that any one of those houses can do for its members. Too much time has been wasted in such speculation already. Hamilton very badly needs a student union which would provide a decent small restaurant, a headquarters for Independents, a place to buy beer, and a place to house dates on off weekends. Every college is poor, and no one could expect a student union on the Williams scale, but it is not impractical to expect that a college of this size should have some such facilities. It would be hoped that such arrangements would make living at Hamilton, either as an independent or fraternity member, more bearable.

It is not a student responsibility to build student unions brick by brick or replace the ramshackled Squires Club with a respectable headquarters for Independents. Nor is it the students' responsibility to reaffirm their approval of a system which, besides being a failure in its own right, has provided the College with an excuse for not accepting its responsibilities. A vote for Total Opportunity is an acceptance of the unfortunate lack of sensibility which the College has shown for its own very serious problems. To judge Total Opportunity as separate from this consideration is pointless.

Several not too novel but relevant observations on T. O.:

1. For those who are not interested in fraternities, total opportunity has erased none of the drawbacks of the original fraternity system. It is not surprising that of two hundred and forty fairly intelligent freshmen, a considerable number find the choice between a fraternity and nothing at all a rather dismal one. Some choose nothing at all, others half heartedly enter a system for which to say the least, they have no enthusiasm.
2. For those who are interested in fraternities, the system has provided a scapegoat for all the shortcomings which are evident in the individual fraternities. Surely the most gung ho fraternity man will admit that if a fraternity cannot withstand competition from minimal independent facilities it deserves to die. In the long run, Total Opportunity and the lack of facilities is artificially preserving at least some of the Hamilton fraternities.

I will not go into the disturbing failures that are evident to almost any student who has attended this College as I have during the last four years. I will only deny that the kind of cruelty which has resulted to certain individual students is just another of the disappointments which they would have been forced to face anyway. It is a disgrace to any community of intelligent people that certain of those incidents could have happened.

As a student of this College I refuse to take the responsibility for the unsatisfactory social situation at Hamilton. It is all very well for the faculty to impose probation upon a Hill fraternity on the grounds that it neglected some undefined responsibility. It is all very well to remark on the responsibilities of a mature Hamilton student. The Trustees, administration, and faculty also have responsibilities for the social climate of a small isolated college.

Many of the observations which I have made are not new. Paul Wagner, '61, quite convincingly pointed out the need for such facilities two years ago in his Clark Oration. The Spectator itself has for two successive years pointed to the need. It is encouraging that plans for at least temporary facilities, evidently brought forward by the new senate president, are being discussed.

Long range plans, however, are the responsibility of the College, and it appears that the Long Range Planning committees are long range planners indeed. I would like to see some constructive plans and sensible action on the part of the College, not four years from now but next year.

I would further like to see an end to such flimsy arguments for Total Opportunity as appeared in the last Spectator. The editorial comment is correct that, "To discuss Total Opportunity to the exclusion of nearly all other elements in the social system is short-sighted." It is equally short-sighted to suppose that a concerned student body cannot exert pressure for a long overdue change in those "elements," by opposing the policies that supposedly justify them. Those who agree to play this hypocritical little game with its "turkey pool" and Sig trials, must surely have better reasons than those offered by the Spectator. If not, then Total Opportunity should not survive the year; if so, then let's hear them.

Richard Skillman, '63

(The Spectator, in its editorial entitled "Total Opportunity," made no attemtpt to defend Total Opportunity either in theory or in practice. The editorial pointed out clearly both the basic advantage and disadvantage of the program and said that, given the present social conditions with both their good and bad points, Total Opportunity must be maintained because it is an integral part of the social system. The point of the editorial was not to impede change, for it was noted that Total Opportunity should be discarded as soon as a better arrangement can be devised. This we continue to believe.

The above letter represents a misunderstanding of the editorial and places the students in somewhat of an idealized position. Should the students try to use Total Opportunity as a "lever" to force the College to act, the only people who will suffer will be the students, for change does not occur overnight. The Trustees will meet next weekend, and the FEC will present its report next week. Both groups have carefully investigated the possibilities of change and should present a more well-informed opinion on changes than is offered by Mr. Skillman's letter.—Ed.)

Alumnus Criticizes Recent Editorial

To the Editor:

Since the autumn of 1958, I have read more than one inane editorial in the Spectator. But I cannot remember a worse one than "Need Women's College—," a copy of which I received today. The simple-mindedness of the 'argument' is exceeded only by the stupidity of its gratuitous assumptions.

To say that Hamilton, because of an abnormal social climate, provides an unhealthy atmosphere for intellectual growth is to demonstrate profound ignorance of what intellectual growth might mean.

The editorial states that by 'sheltering' students in a men's college, Hamilton not only admits the frailty of its students but also fails somehow to give them a full education. This is ridiculous, but even were it true, I cannot see that Alma Mater is making any higher estimate of its students by feeling compelled to surround them with lovely female forms.

The use of the words "normal" and "abnormal" as synonyms for "wholesome" and "perverted" is a blatant obfuscation. If "normal" be taken to mean "average," then Hamilton College, it is to be hoped, is certainly abnormal. Excellence is abnormal; higher education is abnormal; the very 'intellectual life' you say the College should teach is abnormal. And would you have it otherwise?

If "normal" be permitted to include variations from the average—if "normal" be used in a statistical manner—then both the social and intellectual life of Hamilton College are legitimate parts of a normal situation. And it is exactly within the normal variation of the American educational system that there is a place for a men's school with Hamilton's academic strength. It just may be possible that, in spite of your editorial, not all students "live for the weekends;" to such, Hamilton should continue to provide an alternative.

In spite of your disclaimer, the editorial presents the presence of women as no less than a panacea. Is the substitution of new problems for old in any sense a solution? Is change necessarily progress?

The answer to both questions is "no."It is to be hoped and certainly expected that the Board of Trustees will not look for the solution of Hamilton's 'social problems,' to the naive expedient of a coordinate women's college.

Senate Passes Changes In Judiciary Committee

(The proposed change in the Student Senate Constitution and the draft of the change in the Student Senate Regulations on Social Conduct appear on page 4. —Ed.)

The Student Senate will meet next Wednesday night, Apr. 17, at 7:30 p.m., in Root 24, to hear the final report of the Fraternity Evaluation Committee of the other committees of the Senate.

In its last meeting, on Mar. 27, the Senate unanimously passed a proposed change in the Senate Constitution and also passed, by a vote of 13 - 2, a change in the Student Senate Regulations on Social Conduct concerning the structure of the Judiciary Committee.

The proposed resolution had been returned to committee the week before to make several changes that the Senate had then proposed. Additional changes were made by the Senate before it passed the resolution on Mar. 27.

The discussion of the proposed change centered around three points: (1) the manner of electing the members, other than the chairman, of the Judiciary Committee; (2) the chairman's membership in the Senate; and (3) the manner of choosing the chairman.

In the first discussion, Ty Brown thought that each of the members of the Judiciary Committee, other than the chairman, should be elected by a majority vote of the student body. The Senate agreed with Brown and also concurred with John Sanders, who suggested that nominations for position on the Judiciary Committee should be received from the whole student body. The proposal had previously read, "Nominations shall be presented to the Senate."

It was decided that the procedural problems of the nominations would be handled by the Elections Committee.

Doug Frechtling began the second discussion by objecting to the chairman's being a member of the Senate. Jim Memmott said that the chairman must be a member of the Senate in order to provide a connecting link between the Senate and the Judiciary Committee. In that way, he said, the Senate would retain the control over the Judiciary Committee that it has held in the past.

Rick Langstaff asked if the proposal to have the chairman of the Judiciary Committee a member of the Senate in any way violated the Constitution. Ken Kahn, president of the Senate and chairman of this year's Judiciary Committee, replied that it did not.

Langstaff then asked if the chairman had to be a voting member of the Senate. Bruce Temple said that the chairman of the Judiciary Committee could have the same status as the chairman of the Social Committee, a non-voting member of the Senate. George Bashian remarked that the chairman would be more valuable if he were "out of the mainstream of Senate activities."

The Senate passed, by a vote of 8 - 5, the motion that the chairman of the Judiciary Committee be a non-voting member of the Senate.

In the third part of the discussion, Bashian suggested that the outgoing Senate elect the chairman of the following year's Judiciary Committee. Memmott thought that the members of the Judiciary Committee would be able to make a better decision than would the Senate.

Bashian then suggested that the Senate review the choice of the Judiciary Committee. Kahn remarked that such a decision by the Senate could become a political one.

Bashian moved that the Judiciary Committee should suggest to the Senate its choice and that the Senate should then vote on the suggestion. The motion was defeated.

The Senate then voted on the amended draft for the reorganization of the Judiciary Committee. The draft was passed, 13 - 2.

In subsequent action, the Senate unanimously passed the proposed amendment to the Student Senate Constitution.

Joint Orchestras To Give Concert Sunday Afternoon

The Wells - Hamilton Chamber Orchestra and the Hamilton College Woodwind Ensemble will present a concert in the Chapel this Sunday, Apr. 14, at 4 p.m. The Chamber Orchestra is directed by Miss Louise Jopling of Wells and by Mr. Stephen Bonta. The Woodwind Ensemble is directed by Mr. David T. Graves.

The program, which will include pieces from the Baroque, Classic, Romantic and Modern eras, will be presented at Wells on Tuesday, Apr. 16, at 8 p.m.

Among the pieces played will be Bach's Concerto in D for oboe, violin, and strings. John Baldwin, director of the Choir, will play the harpsichord continuo for the Bach and other Baroque pieces.

The concert on Sunday will be the first major orchestral concert presented by the Wells-Hamilton group since the two groups joined last fall. Combining the two groups has made it possible for them to present compositions requiring more performers and a more desirable balance of instruments than either group alone possessed.

The group has accompanied the Choir on two occasions this year and also played for the College's annual Christmas service.

Hill Nine To Open Season Next Friday

by Bruce Rockwell

Coach Greg Batt will get a chance to see what kind of a ball club he has next Tuesday when his team plays a practice game with LeMoyne. The practice contest will be played on the new Hamilton diamond. Batt hopes to be able to establish his batting order after he watches the team in action. The squad officially opens its season next Friday at Rochester.

Batt announced that John Elliott will be the starting pitcher against Rochester's Yellowjackets. The other hurlers are Warren Palmer, Ken Gould, John Flogel, and John Soffey. The peculiarity here is that four of the five are southpaws. Only Palmer is right-handed. Batt commented that Gould showed good control and looked impressive on Tuesday. Soffey, he said, would be called upon for relief duty.

The team still has only one catcher, Mel Ollestad, but there is hope that Rick Langstaff, an able receiver, will also come out for the team.

Three infield positions are set with Ned Wilson at first, Don Burns at short, and Carl Bianchi at third. Denny Carrithers and Don Harvey are battling for the second base position. The better hitter will probably get the starting nod.

The playing field has been turned around this season to provide a natural barrier in left and left center field. The change has increased the left and right field lines by several feet and will also prevent cheap home runs in right and right center field.

There are still other advantages to the change. The sun will no longer bother the first basemen in the late afternoon, and the hitters will no longer be hitting into the prevailing winds. Also, the change should cut down considerably the number of foul balls that are hit into the tennis courts.

Rochester's coach, Don Smith, boasts of his strong club this year. The Yellowjackets defeated Hamilton twice last season by scores of 12-4 and 15-3.

Smith's returning lettermen include John Popp, a pitcher, and Jack Bishop, a hard-hitting catcher. Popp, a senior, and Bishop, a junior, are co-captains of the team. John Denison, a left-handed, power-hitting junior, will start at either first base or in the outfield. Veterans Bob Jennings, a pitcher, Dennis Elmore, a second baseman, Ken Wydro, an outfielder, and Terry Giles, a utility man, add experience to the squad.

Newcomers to the Rochester team include Bruce Warren, a curve-balling hurler who had a 5-0 record for the freshman team last year, and Lionel Whittingham, who should be the starting shortstop. Sophomores Dick Rice and Dave Hesek should both start in the outfield.

Theta Delt Takes Intramural Crown In Overtime Win

The winter intramural season closed the week preceeding spring vacation. DU emerged as the victor in bowling, and TDX triumphed in basketball.

The DU bowlers, led by Terry Fair, who had a 204 high game and a series of 571, defeated Psi U, 4-0. Don Harvey also chipped in with a 519 series. In total pins, DU left the Psi U bowlers with more than a 300 pin deficit, accumulating a total of 2,065 pins to Psi U's 1,739. The DU team average for the match was 172.

In basketball, Psi U and TDX represented the Blue League and DKE and the Independents represented the Buff in the semi-finals of the championship. Psi U defeated the Independents, 40-31, and TDX knocked off DKE, 42-35. The two Blue squads met in the finals, when the TDX cagers beat Psi U, 42-40, in a hard-fought contest which went into two overtimes. The Theta Delts were led by Sandy Stone with 15 points, ten of which were scored in the overtime period to lead TDX to victory. Dom Pallotta was high man for Psi U with 17 points. In the consolation game, the Independents beat DKE, 57-45, for third place.

Intramural Chairman Charlie Thacher stated that the intramural swimming meet would be held next week. An announcement will be made as to the exact date early next week. He added that softball will begin as soon as the weather permits and that intramural golf and tennis will start later in the spring.

Track Team To Open Season In Union Meet Next Saturday

by John Frisbee

Next Saturday, Apr. 20, the varsity track team will open its 1963 season in a meet with the Union Dutchmen.

Coach Gene Long said that his team looked very good Tuesday, following a ten day layoff for spring vacation. He commented further that the Hamilton track was in excellent shape this season.

Long stated that two new events have been added to meets this season. For the first time, the hop, skip, and jump will be one of the events in intercollegiate track meets, as will the 300 yard intermediate hurdles. In this event, there will be eight hurdles over a 300 yard course. The hurdles will be 36 inches high instead of the 27-inch hurdles used previously in the 220 yard low hurdles. This event, Long said, was initiated by the coaches in an attempt to develop promissing hurdlers for the 400 meter hurdles in the Olympics.

According to Long, there are several major problems facing the squad in preparing for the opening meet. The team must find a strong sprinter to replace Ueli Schaub, who was graduated last year. The 880-yard run could prove a possible weakness, said Long, since last year's captain, Hal von Brockdorff, was graduated, but he added that Dewey Strohmeyer has been improving steadily.

No longer able to use freshmen, the team will also suffer in the distance races, in which it will be the jobs of Al Cardona, Bill Morgan, and Pete Knobel to fill the gap left by Phil Hineline. The team also lacks a strong shotputter and does not have the depth of last year's squad, commented Long.

The Continental's greatest strength lies in the hurdles. Long stated that Lanie Eagleton, this year's captain, is in the best shape he has ever been in. John von Bergen will be the second hurdler. The javelin will be fairly strong with Warren Bratter and John Bucciarelli. The high jump, with letterman Dan McCouch, and the pole vault, with Pete Bowles are also strong, Long said, although there is no depth beyond these two men. Conference champion Rad Piersall will return to throw the discuss, but again, there is no depth behind him.

Long commented that several men on the squad will be in strong positions to set new school records in their respective events. He said that Eagleton has a strong chance to break his present record of 15.5 seconds in the 120-yard high hurdles. Also, Piersall, Bowles, and McCouch are all in positions to make bids for new school records.

Lettermen To Pace Golfers Through Nine-match Season

Four lettermen are returning to the golf team this season. They are Leon Kantor, John Sheeser, Carl Hayden, and Bill Tracy. Sheeser lettered two years ago, and is returning after having spent his junior year in France. Bob Harvey and Howie Watson also were members of the golf team last year. Six new men, Bob Kessler, John Simon, Phil Hornberg, George Gross, Steve Rice, and Joel Johnson, are joining the team.

The team will meet nine opponents instead of last year's eight. They will oppose Colgate and Albany for the first time; Hartwick is the only school that the team played last year but is not challenging this season.

Senate To Meet

The Student Senate will meet next Wednesday, Apr. 17, at 7:30 p.m. in Root 24.

Lacrosse Squad Lacks Strength of Veterans

After losing only three men from last year's lacrosse squad to graduation, Coach Manfred vonSchiller expected 15 but got only seven returing lettermen to this year's squad. The three who were graduated last year were Gary Mahood, who was named honorable mention All-American, Nev Steel, and Harvey Singer.

Chris Baldenhofer, Randy Foose, Pete Goodnough, Dan Green, Arnis Lamberts, and John Pierson are not playing this year for academic reasons. Three other players are out with injuries. Gault Farrell is shelved by a broken nose, Scott Hand is suffering from hepatitis, and Dick Wier is still handicapped by his ankle, which he broke during the winter.

The seven returning lettermen are attackmen Phil Baldenhofer and Carl Neun, midfielders Andy Kepler, Seymour Smith, and Kip Tinker, and defensemen Tag Adams and Dick Weaver. Kepler and Adams are co-captains of the team.

Two players, Rog Vincent and Dave Morris, are battling for the goal position left vacant by Foose's absence. Vincent was the second goalie last year; Morris played two years ago.

Von Schiller commented that Hugh Carson, a defenseman, will be a starter on the squad. Other players who will see action are Bob Blabey, Guy Spath, and Bill Toomajian, midfielders Rod Parker, Don Seipel, and Pete Siersma, and defensemen Gene Deci and Skee Houghton.

The squad received its first test here today when it scrimmaged the Syracuse Lacrosse Club.

The Hot Corner

by Bruce Rockwell

With the advent of the baseball season, many sports writers feel called upon to predict the outcome of the 162-game schedule. I too feel this strange urge to look into my crystal ball and predict the final standings.

My pick for the National League Pennant is the San Francisco Giants. The powerful offensive attack of Willie Mays, Orlando Cepeda, Felipe Alou, Harvey Kuenn, Jim Davenport, Willie McCovey, Matty Alou, and Ed Bailey will continue to terrorize National League pitchers. Jack Sanford, Juan Marichal, Billy Pierce, Billy O'Dell, and Jack Fisher form a respectable mound corps. The Giants will repeat.

The St. Louis Cardinals also feature a powerful lineup. George Altman (obtained from the Cubs) and Dick Groat (obtained from the Pirates) add class to a lineup that already includes Stan Musial, Bill White, Curt Flood, and Ken Boyer. The pitching is a question mark, but I feel that Ernie Broglio, Ray Sedecki, Ray Washburn, and Bob Gibson will live up to potential this year. The Cards will move up to second place.

Everyone knows the Los Angeles Dodgers have hitting with Tommy Davis, Frank Howard, Ron Fairly, and Bill Skowron, and speed with Maury Wills, Willie Davis, John Roseboro, and Tommy Davis. Don Drysdale is a fine pitcher. But has Sandy Koufax's injured finger healed? What about Johnny Podres' aching back? Who will replace Stan Williams (traded to the Yankees)? Pitching is a problem. The Dodgers will finish third.

The Cincinnati Reds have a good club on paper. Frank Robinson, Vada Pinson, and Gordy Coleman supply the power. Don Blasingame and Leo Cardenas also hit for the average. Bob Purkey, Joey Jay, and Jim O'Toole form a strong "big three" on the mound. But I can't see the Reds finishing any higher than fourth.

The Pittsburg Pirates traded away Dick Stuart, Dick Groat, and Don Hoak. Rookies must take over for them. Bill Mazeroski, Bob Skinner, Bill Virdon, and Smokey Burgess remain. Newcomers Don Schwall (from the Red Sox) and Don Cardwell (from the Cards) join Bob Friend, Al McBean, and Earl Francis will appear on the mound. Elroy Face is still a reliable fireman. Bob Bailey, a third baseman, could be the rookie of the year. The trades will hurt the Pirates. They will finish fifth.

The Philadelphia Phillies are an improving ball club. John Callison, Tony Gonzalez, Don Demeter, Don Hoak, Roy Sievers, and Clay Dalrymple will supply ample hitting. Art Mahaffey will win twenty games this year. The Philes will move up to sixth.

The familiar Milwaukee Braves are old or traded to other clubs. Gone are Billy Bruton, Joe Adcock, Johnny Logan, Joey Jay, and Juan Pizarro. Only Hank Aaron, Eddie Mathews, Del Crandall, Warren Spahn, and Lew Burdette remain, and they are not getting any younger. The Braves will slip to seventh.

The Chicago Cubs have Ernie Banks. Ron Santo and Billy Williams can also hit. Larry Jackson and Bob Buhl will handle the mound chores. "Errorless" Ken Hubbs also returns. But the Cubs can do no better than eighth.

Planning ahead is the rule for the Houston Colts. Pete Runnels can hit and Dick Farrell can pitch. The rest of the club is too young. Maybe in five years, but this year the Colts will finish ninth.

The New York Mets are either too old or too young. Duke Snider, Frank Thomas, Charlie Neal, and Gil Hodges will hit occasionally. Roger Craig, Al Jackson, and Jay Hook form a good hurling crew but lack support offensively and defensively. The Mets will again be the worst club in either league and will hold down the cellar of the senior loop.

In the American League, the New York Yankees are as always the Yankees. Who can beat Mickey Mantle, Roger Maris, Elston Howard, Bobby Richardson, Tony Kubek, Clete Boyer, Tom Tresh, John Blanchard, Yogi Berra, Hector Lopez, Dale Long, and rookie Joe Pepitone? Ralph Terry, Bill Stafford, and Stan Williams are strong hurlers. Whitey Ford should recover from his injury and continue frustrating American League hitters. No one can beat out the Yanks this year; they will finish first again.

The Baltimore Orioles can give the Yankees a run for their money. Al Smith and Luis Aparicio have been obtained from the White Sox. Jim Gentile, Brooks Robinson, and John "Boog" Powell have tremendous power. Jackie Brandt is also a fine hitter. The pitching staff includes Steve Barber, Milt Pappas, and Chuck Estrada, and they will break into their own this year. Don't forget Robin Roberts and the man with the tantalizing slow stuff, Stu Miller (acquired from the Giants). The Orioles will bounce back from their seventh place finish of last year and place second.

The Minnesota Twins will also push the Yanks. The offense features power (Harmon Killebrew, Bob Allison) and consistent hitting (Vic Power, Rich Collins). Camilo Pascual leads an underrated mound staff. The Twins will finish third.

The Detroit Tigers have the hitting — Al Kaline, Norm Cash, Rocky Colavito, Gus Triandos, and Billy Bruton — and the pitching — Frank Lary, Hank Aguirre, Jim Bunning, and Don Mossi. But I can't see them finishing any higher than fourth.

The Cleveland Indians acquired Joe Adcock from the Braves. Tito Francona, John Romano, Willie Kirkland, and Gene Green with Adcock form a fearsome fivesome at the plate. Vic Davalillo and Tony Martinez are both flashy rookies and should start in center and short respectively. Dick Donovan, Pedro Ramos, Barry Latman, Gary Bell, Jim (Mudcat) Grant, and Jim Perry form a talented mound staff. The Indians will finish fifth.

The Chicago White Sox feature two promising rookies. Third baseman Pete Ward hits with power and is my pick for rookie of the year honors. The other rookie, Dave Robinson, has tremendous power. Joe Cunningham and Floyd Robinson are accomplished hitters. But Nellie Fox, Sherm Lollar, and Jim Landis are getting old. The pitching staff is thin — only Ray Herbert, Juan Pizarro, and Hoyt Wilhelm seem like winners. The White Sox will finish sixth.

Can the Los Angeles Angels continue to surprise the league? They have clutch hitters in Leon Wagner, Lee Thomas, Billy Moran, and Albie Pearson. Bo Belinsky, Dean Chance, and Ken McBride are back on the mound. But reality will set in, and the Angels will slip to seventh.

Dick Stuart cannot bring the Boston Red Sox out of the second division. Neither can Roman Majias (obtained from Houston). Carl Yastrzemski, Frank Malzone, and Lou Clinton couldn't last year. The pitching features Bill Monbouquette and Gene Conley. Dick Radatz is a capable reliever and will be called on often this year. The Red Sox will finish eighth.

The Kansas City Athletics have two talented former Yankees, Norm Sieburn and Jerry Lumpe. Manny Jimenez must fight off sophomoritis. The pitching features some little-known men who, if they pitch as well as they did last year, can keep the A's out of the cellar and in ninth place.

The Washington Senators have Chuck Hinton and Jimmy Pearsall (who couldn't hit last year), but little else. Pitchers Dave Stenhouse, Tom Cheney, and Don Rudolph will get little support offensively or defensively. The Senators will finish tenth.

Township To Require Honses To Comply with Mitchell Law

The Town Attorney of Kirkland has interpreted the Transient Dwelling Law (Mitchell Law) as non-permissive. This means that fraternities will have to comply with the law concerning fire protection and prevention in the houses.

According to Mr. Harry Converse, building inspector for the township of Kirkland, compliance with the law will take place in three steps. (1) Fraternities must submit prior to June 1 proof of sufficient liability coverage for the houses. (2) The fraternities must submit by Sept., 1963, their plans for compliance with the Mitchell Law. (3) Fraternities must have fully complied with the Mitchell Law by Sept., 1964.

The Mitchell Law, Converse said, requires four fire-preventative measures. (1) The boiler room must be cut off by a self-closing door. (2) There must be a fire escape or two alternative exits from each floor above the first. (3) All exits must be marked by illuminated signs. (4) There must be a sprinkler system in the basement and hallways or the ceiling of the basement must be coated with fire-retardant paint and the stairwells must be closed on each level.

Converse said that he will make a second inspection of the fraternity houses next week.

Commenting on the Mitchell Law, Richard Couper, administrative vice-president of the College, said that the statute has been on the books since 1954 but that enforcement up to this point has been up to local enforcement officers. He added that the state has recently put pressure on the local boards to enforce the law.

Couper said that all of the dormitories comply with the law and that the College is interested in seeing enforcement in the fraternity houses for the safety of students.

Couper said that the College also recognizes the financial burden that will be placed on the fraternity houses.

He said, however, that the steps for compliance are reasonable and will give the fraternities sufficient time to raise the necessary funds.

Senate Committee Plans Rathskeller For Coming Year

At its meeting on March 27, the Student Senate heard a report from John Sanders, chairman of the Rathskeller Committee. Sanders reported that his committee is aiming at the first of next semester for the establishment of a Rathskeller on campus.

Sanders said that two locations are available, the basement of Benedict or of Truax, but that Truax is more desirable because of size and of the facilities available for development.

In reply to questions, Sanders said that the committee will try to keep the project as inexpensive as possible. He also said that what indication he has so far received from the administration has been favorable. He that, however, that the Rathskeller will have to meet several different State regulations.

The committee has also discussed the operation of the Rathskeller, Sanders said. He suggested that it might be controlled by the social committee and that profits could be returned to the Social Committee for entertainment at the Rathskeller and other places on campus.

Pianist To Offer Recital in Chapel

David Mulfinger, an award-winning pianist will give a recital on Tuesday, Apr. 16, in the Chapel. Mulfinger is presently studying the doctoral course, Performing, at Indiana University.

Mulfinger studied piano with his mother and his father, George, a noted pianist, composer, and teacher. In 1956 Mulfinger won the Fausey Award for highest attainment in piano performance at the Syracuse University School of Music, and the following year he won a scholarship for study with James Friskin at Chautauqua, N. Y. In 1958, he won a Performance Scholarship of Oberlin College.

In 1959, he was awarded a Fulbright Grant which allowed him to study in Frankfort am Main with Hans Leygraf and Carl Weiss. Mulfinger gave his first New York recital last April.

Upper left and right shows progress on the Theater, which will be ready for some activities on Parents' Weekend. The formal dedication will probably take place on Commencement weekend.
